

Melinda Reidinger, Ph.D.

I wear many hats: these are only a few of them. First, I'm an anthropologist specializing in Czech country homes and cottages and I present my research at conferences in the Czech Republic and abroad. My paid employment is translating various texts from Czech into English. I work with the Czech Philharmonic, the Karel Čapek Foundation, the civic association People Seeking People, and the Brotherhood of Celts, among other organizations, on publicity and grants, and occasionally I write articles or editorials for Czech print and electronic media.
